Academic Senate of the California State University adopted a statement on Collegiality in the California State University that included these opening paragraphs:

The smooth and effective operation of a complex multipurpose university system requires a spirit of collegiality that both reflects and fosters mutual respect among all groups within the system. Collegiality consists of a shared decision-making process and a set of attitudes which cause individuals to regard the members of the various constituencies of the university as responsible for the success of the academic enterprise.

Fundamental to this concept is the understanding that a university is a community of scholars who, out of mutual respect for the expertise and contributions of their colleagues, agree that shared decision-making in areas of recognized primary responsibility constitutes the means whereby a university best preserves its academic integrity and most effectively attains its educational mission.
WHEREAS the success of shared decision-making in the University is dependent upon the willingness of members of the University community to serve on the many agencies of academic governance; and

WHEREAS the Academic Senate is the central agency for academic governance; and

WHEREAS willingness to serve on the Academic Senate is, therefore, of fundamental importance to the success of the academic enterprise; now therefore be it
